

Community Engagement Advisory Panels

The Community Engagement Advisors Program supports participant-centered, community-engaged health research at Duke. Community Engagement Advisory Panels are supported by the Duke CTSI Community Engagement team and offer community feedback for new and ongoing research projects on:

- Relevance of research questions to the community
- Tolerability of study design by the community
- Acceptability of materials to the community
- Return of study results to participants

Panel members provide valuable feedback to research teams on study design, recruitment materials, potential risks and benefits, patient-reported outcomes, and development of lay summaries. Contact our team to learn more and connect with an Advisory Panel:
